Old Fashioned Mining Camp Provides Family Fun

Julian Gold Rush Days, which takes place April 1-2 from 10am-5pm, celebrates the discovery of gold in this mountain community and invites visitors to learn more about the town's history with a weekend of entertainment including:

- Gold Panning
- Tomahawk Throwing
- Candle Dipping
- Re-enactments
- Arts and Crafts
- Petting Zoo
- Pony Rides, and more

Held at the Julian Mining Company in Wynola, the old-fashioned mining camp will offer an arts and crafts market, food and drink, a petting zoo, children's pioneer games, face painting, free parking and plenty of family fun. Admission is $3.00 for adults. Kids 12 and under are free.

"Julian Gold Rush Days is a great opportunity to 'turn back the clock' and give visitors an idea of what Julian was like in its early days," according to Tracy Turner, of the Julian Chamber of Commerce. "It's entertainment for the whole family!"

In the winter of 1869 when former slave Fred Coleman discovered gold in a small creek just outside of Julian, it set off a frenzy that became San Diego's own gold rush. Within a few weeks, over 800 prospectors from all over the country were headed to Julian in search of gold. The first producing gold mine, the Washington Mine, was discovered in February 1870 and within days over 40 other claims were registered.

The gold rush lasted off and on for about thirty years, producing almost $2 million in gold (about $150 million in today's market). While other nearby gold mining towns such as Banner City, Branson City, Cuyamaca City, and Eastwood disappeared over time, Julian continued to thrive with the production of its newest asset—apples.
